ShareAlarm is a small and portable software application that pops up notifications every time a remote computer attempts to access your shared folders. It targets all types of users, regardless of their skill level. Since installation is not a prerequisite, you can simply drop the executable file anywhere on the hard drive and run it. As an alternative, you can save ShareAlarm to a USB flash drive or similar removable device, and run it on any computer without installing anything beforehand. What should be mentioned is that Windows Registry does not get entry updates, and files are not left behind on the hard drive when removing the tool. The interface of ShareAlarm is based on a standard window with a well-organized layout, where you can view the name, user name, path and operating system for each workstation that's trying to get a glimpse of your shared folders. You can select a WAV or MP3 file from the computer to assign it as a sound notifier, as well as test the alarm and stop it. In addition, you can block a workstation's access through the context menu, create a black list, as well as close a session. ShareAlarm barely uses CPU and system memory, so it doesn't burden the computer's overall performance. It has a good response time and works fine, without making the operating system hang, crash or pop up error dialogs; we haven't encountered any issues in our tests. On the downside, the program has not been updated for a very long time, hence it is not supported by newer operating systems. Other than that, ShareAlarm can be seamlessly handled, even by inexperienced users.]]>Peter Neck Feedback/Reply Hi Erik, Thank you for the feedback. We are currently working on ShareAlarm v5.1. What's New in the?

ShareAlarm is a software application that provides remote control and access for all remote users to all computer resources (shared folders, files, printers, web sites, emails etc.) on your network. It keeps an eye out for unauthorized access from any workstation on your network. It will notify you of any suspicious activity and log it, so you can view the history later on. ShareAlarm will tell you if someone is trying to access your files without your permission, or if your sensitive data is accessed by someone else (e.g. confidential data, access to installed programs etc.). Since ShareAlarm does not require registration or installation on the target computer, it can be used with any operating system, even in corporate networks. The price is absolutely dirt cheap. It will cost you only $9.99. ShareAlarm Features: Customizable notifications: You can set custom actions. You can perform actions on most events, not just on file access. Multiple workstations: ShareAlarm can monitor multiple computers at the same time. Live access: You can view any changes on the computer monitor. Remote control: ShareAlarm can control and monitor all computers on the network from any computer. Easy to use: ShareAlarm is simple to use, just double-click the.exe file and it will run automatically. Open Security: You can scan the computer for open security ports, and lock them. Block computers: You can block users, so they won't be able to access your files anymore. Black List: If a user tries to access your files without permission, you can add them to a black list, so they will not be able to access the file again. Alarm log: You can monitor the log of all activity on your computer. Recursive monitor: You can monitor all network resources, such as shared folders, printers, web sites, web servers, emails, POP3/IMAP accounts, etc. System Requirements: - Windows 98, 2000, XP or newer, with Service Pack 2 or newer. - 1 GHz CPU. - 2 GB of RAM. - 100 MB of hard drive space. - 1024x768 screen resolution. - 56kbps modem. - Windows 98 Service Pack 2 or newer. - 64-bit support. Installation: 1. Download and run ShareAlarmSetup.exe. 2. In the ShareAlarm application window, press the "Open" button and select "Startup.lnk". 3. Click the "Run" button. 4. Follow the instructions to install and run ShareAlarm. 5. If a "startup.lnk" window pops up, click "
