Time Lock [Mac/Win]

Fully automatic remote access key management for Windows. DESCRIPTION Use KEYMACRO to remotely manage a list of keys that can be used to unlock a remote computer. This way, any user that knows the correct passphrase for a key can remotely access the remote computer. The security of a key depends on its password. You can also create a key that requires a passphrase and a user name to unlock it. And, finally, you can have a specific application that requires a passphrase to unlock the key. For example, a key that can be used with software that requires login credentials, for example, Microsoft Outlook. KEYMACRO allows you to have a key that can be used on any computer. For example, if you have a desktop computer and a laptop, and you want to use the same key to unlock both of them, then you can do that. KEYMACRO was originally developed by UniKey and the UniKey team uses it to remotely manage keys for remote computers. KEYMACRO can be used in conjunction with Windows. When you install KEYMACRO, it automatically asks for a password to be created for a new key. You can have a key that is not password protected, a key that requires a password and a key that requires a user name and a password. You can generate a key, and use it to lock the remote computer. You can also generate a key that can be used to unlock a remote computer if you provide the correct passphrase. KEYMACRO is an easy-to-use, free program.
