Although the role of the autonomic nervous system in controlling the male reproductive system has been recognized for many years, the neurotransmitter of the major parasympathetic and sympathetic nerves to the testes has remained largely unknown. In the present study, it is reported that intraperitoneal administration of dopamine or a dopamine agonist to the male rat causes a rise in plasma testosterone within 5 h. Testosterone rises concomitantly with increased pituitary gonadotropin, but the increases in pituitary and plasma gonadotropin are not due to a direct inhibitory effect of dopamine on the pituitary. Instead, it is hypothesized that dopamine indirectly inhibits gonadotropin release by inhibiting release of hypothalamic LHRH.Q: How to change default color of AlertDialog in android? I want to customize AlertDialog (which is appearing when click button). After pressing button, dialog window has default color. How can I change default color? A: You can override the style of your AlertDialog by creating a custom style. The default style is a Style attribute on an AlertDialog, so you can change it by overriding this style attribute like this: @android:style/Theme.Dialog The parent attribute sets the style that you want to inherit. Of course you can override it as well (e.g. for the parent as @android:style/Theme.Dialog). See the AlertDialog documentation on how to define and use styles.
